

Dr. Ken Sagoe
Director, Human Resources Development
Ghana Health Service

Dr. Ken Sagoe is a public health physician and currently the Director for the Human Resource Development Directorate (HRDD) of the Ghana Health Service.

He holds an MB ChB from the University of Ghana Medical School and a Masters in Community Health from the Liverpool School of Tropical Medicine.

As Director HRDD of the Ghana Health Service, he manages a multi-disciplinary workforce of about 40,000.

He previously worked for the Ghana Health Service in a variety of roles at the regional, district and hospital level in clinical and management positions.

He is also a part-time lecturer in Health Systems Management at the School of Nursing & the School of Public Health, University of Ghana. He is also a visiting lecturer to the Ghana Institute of Management & Public Administration (GIMPA).

His main interests are in Health Systems Development and Human Resource for Health Issues in Health Sector Reforms.

His research interests are human resource development and migration of health professionals.